2014 Summer Undergraduate Research Grants

The Harvard Origins of Life Initiative will again offer Summer Undergraduate Research Grants of up to $5,000 per undergrad in 2014. Grants are available for undergrads working in Origins team member labs on Origins-related projects. The names of the Origins team members and links to their websites can be found at the below link:

<http://origins.harvard.edu/people/research-faculty>

To apply, first please review the team member websites. If you determine that your research interests are compatible with those of an Origins team member, please contact that team member directly and express your interest in working on an Origins-related research project in his/her lab as part of the Origins Summer Undergraduate Research Grant program. If the team member agrees, request that he/she email a brief, ½-page proposal of the research project (including in the proposal the offer of lab space) to Carol Knell at cknell@cfa.harvard.edu. Also please email Carol a copy of your CV. We request that proposals and CV's be received in our office by Monday, February 24, 2014. We expect to inform recipients of their awards by Friday, March 7, 2014.

Please note: The grant is a stipend only and does not include housing. Recipients would be responsible for making their own housing arrangements.

If you have any questions about the grants, please contact Carol Knell at cknell@cfa.harvard.edu.
